Prepared by the ARIZONA DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

Huachuca City, also known as the Sunset City, is on state Highway 90, 64 miles southeast of Tucson. The community originated as a stop on the now-abandoned Southern Pacific Railroad between Tombstone and Patagonia. It is located in the southeast corner of Arizona in Cochise County, noted for its historical, recreational and scenic features. The rugged mountains and broad grassy valleys were once dominated by the Apaches whose chief gave his name to the county. The struggle between the Chiricahua Apaches and the U.S. Cavalry is reflected in numerous sites throughout the county. The Chiricahua Mountains and Coronado National Forest are popular with nature lovers and hunters.

At 20 miles from Mexico's border, the city has potential for the twin plant industrial concept. The 40-acre Huachuca Commercial Center (for improved industrial/commercial sites) is being constructed. Undeveloped land with city utilities available is abundant.
